

Charles Smith Wines
2007 Kung Fu Girl Riesling
(100% Riesling)

It's back!!! The long-awaited Kung Fu Girl is finally here.

Kick ass single vineyard Riesling grown in the rocky soils of Evergreen vineyard. Beautifully aromatic delicate spring blossoms. White apricot & peach. Explosive concentrated flavor and a long fresh finish. Single vineyard, fragmented basalt, gravel, and caliche...classic Riesling, sublime minerality. Need you ask, why? 'Cause Riesling and Girls Kick Ass!

"I thought there should be something in the sweet spot; regionally focused and vineyard driven. Instead of building these wines on winemaking, extraction, oak and extended aging, they're wines that are grown in the vineyard and put in the bottle intact. They taste like the varietal, and they taste like where they came from." –Charles Smith, winemaker

Paul Gregutt, Seattle Times, Top 100 Wines of Washington State for 2007

"There's no question the wine is seriously good...It's feminine but strong enough to fight back against the porky brawn of (Chinese spare) ribs." Bill Daley, Chicago Tribune, July 2007

"We've rarely seen domestic Rieslings that cut the mustard, but this one really kicked our doubtin' ass!! PS Charles Smith rocks!" Bin 36 Restaurant, Chicago, Illinois, Summer 2007

".....A couple of days later at Morrell's Wine Bar, almost next door to Christie's in Rockefeller Plaza: lo and behold, a 2006 Riesling from K Vintners in Washington State. Despite its bizarre title – Kung Fu Girl – and most peculiar label, it was a sheer delight. Extremely pale, a touch of spritz; pure classic Riesling aromas: off-dry with delicious flavour and acidity. A perfect, lightish (12.5% alcohol) lunchtime drink with an equally good salmon dish. I gave both four stars." Michael Broadbent, Decanter Magazine, Across the pond – the great divide
